

Message of Support to the Hellenic Association for Counselling's 2019 Conference

IAC President Bill Borgen, and all of the IAC Executive Council worldwide, wish to convey their warmest greetings for a most successful and enjoyable Hellenic Association for Counselling (HAC) 2019 Conference.

It is with regret that we are unable to be with you in person but wish you every success. We would especially like to congratulate the conference organisers for their hard work and efforts in bringing such an event together. Counselling conferences make a real difference to the development of the profession, both in Greece and beyond. We congratulate you on your commitment and for all that you have achieved. The shared visions and aims of our associations make our partnership stronger and more necessary. In Greece, Europe, and around the world, counselling is becoming much better known. However, a constantly changing world continues to put challenges in the way of counsellors having the same recognition, rights and opportunities as other professions.

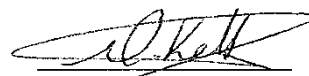

Counselling makes a positive change for people in society by promoting social justice, and empowering them through increasing choices and enhancing their wellbeing. IAC will continue its efforts to support the development of counselling at country, regional and global levels. We are sure that your conference will offer ample opportunity to build on your distinguished record and we wish success to all of your members and guests.

Thank you for your commitment to this important work. Please accept our best wishes for a fruitful gathering and we look forward to joining you at future events.

Yours Faithfully,

Dr. Bill Borgen,
President, IAC Executive Council.

Mr. Naoise Kelly,
IAC Chief Executive.
